PASTOR'S COMMENTS

This too shall pass. It just might pass like a kidney stone. I saw this on a sign early this week and I thought, "you know that's just about true" in a lot of cases. My comments last week are about the storm passing by and sometimes a storm carries a tornado. That doesn't feel so good, now does it? I don't know what situation you may be dealing with. How it may be going. Why you're going through it. In fact, we may never understand why we go through certain trials and tribulations. Whatever it is, it may pass. It might even hurt when it does. However, someday don't you know that it will all be better? If you've been saved, don't fail to remember that we are only passing through here. Joy comes in the morning! Thank the Lord.

I'm so glad to see you this morning, and I know the Lord is as well. Let us praise his Holy name.

Don't forget dinner this Thursday evening at 5:40. Bring your food and come on.

BIBLE TRIVIA:

Last Week's Question: Who built the first Jerusalem temple?
Solomon (1 Kings 6)

This Week's Question: Who planted the first garden?

CAUTION: WORDS FORMING

Be careful of your thoughts; they could break into words at any time.

Knowing and not doing are equal to not knowing at all.

Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

James 4:17

=====
It is official. Our work day yesterday was a great success. We had several individuals who showed up and gave of their time and energy to spruce up our church. Thank you to everyone who participated.

BUSINESS MEETING TODAY

It has been recommended that we plan on having a churchwide yard sale sometime in the future. If you have items that you no longer use or would like to donate, please feel free to bring the items and we will store them until we have set a date for the sale. Also ask your friends and neighbors if they have items they can donate. All donations will be appreciated.
